Nurturing
Health with the Positive
Deviance
Hearth Program

BALCO in collaboration with the Department of Animal Husbandry, hosted three Animal Health Camps to enhance livestock well-being. Led by Dr. Satish Rathod, the camps treated over 2,400 cattle and goats, benefiting 266 farmers through deworming, liver tonics, mineral supplements, and on-site diagnosis and treatment. Farmers were also educated on livestock nutrition, feeding practices, and preventive care, ensuring healthier animals and improved farming outcomes.

BALCO reached out to 72 children across the nearby villages of Korba through its Positive Deviance Hearth (PDH) program. The initiative engaged mothers and families in 12-day interactive sessions featuring cooking demonstrations, nutrition counselling, and hands-on activities, complemented by follow-up home visits to ensure lasting impact. This effort underscores BALCO's commitment to promoting child health and strengthening community well-being.
